Spatial Planning Studios

Specifications
The following information applies to the following rooms of the Faculty of Architecture in Building L at the Galgenbergstraße location of the OTH Regensburg, referred to as "studios": L101, L201, L301, L401

Reduction Studios
The studios are to be used exclusively by members of the Faculty of Architecture for student work within the framework of their studies. Private and commercial use is not permitted.

The workplaces in the studios may only be occupied on a daily basis and not permanently or for a period of more than one day. Workplaces must be completely cleared daily ("clean table"), as the number of places is limited.

In the studios, work tables and storage shelves with storage bays ("grey boxes") are available for students' personal use to store material throughout their studies. The grey boxes can be labelled by name. The remaining storage space in the shelves is available for temporary storage of models that need to be removed at the end of the semester.

The studios cannot be locked. No liability is accepted for personal belongings, study work, etc. in the studios.

Cutting tools or adhesives may not be used on the work tables without a suitable cutting surface; damage to the tables must be avoided. Painting work and hot cutting work on plastics are prohibited in the studios. For safety reasons, cutting and sawing work with cutters or similar tools may only be carried out if at least two students are working in a studio area at the same time. Machines may not be used at the workplaces in the studios as a matter of principle; machine use is only permitted in the model work areas L004 and L005A.

The students themselves are responsible for occupational safety at the workplaces in the studios.

Opening Hours
The opening hours depend on the building opening hours, see general university schedule.
If rooms are needed for examinations, they must be vacated by the students concerned three working days before the start of the examination period after a request by the Dean's Office.

Students' private belongings must be removed independently; only the storage boxes can remain on the shelves.

The Dean's Office will inform the students about this in good time before the examination period.
